

Tuition Reimbursement Program

Eligibility

Full-time employees with at least 6 months of tenure are eligible for tuition reimbursement for courses related to their current role or a reasonable career path at Contoso Corp, as determined jointly by the employee and their manager. Part-time employees are not eligible for this specific program, though they remain eligible for the separate professional development stipend described in the Learning and Development policy.

Reimbursement Amount

Contoso Corp reimburses up to $5,250 per calendar year for tuition, required textbooks, and course fees, upon proof of a passing grade (C or better, or Pass in pass/fail courses). Amounts above $5,250 in a calendar year are reimbursed but treated as taxable income per IRS rules on employer education assistance, and Payroll will withhold applicable taxes from the portion above the threshold.

Approval Process

Submit the Tuition Reimbursement Pre-Approval Form to your manager and HR before the course start date; reimbursement requests without prior approval will be denied regardless of the grade earned, since the pre-approval step is what confirms the course is genuinely job-related before Contoso Corp commits to reimbursing it.

Repayment on Departure

Employees who voluntarily resign within 12 months of receiving tuition reimbursement must repay the reimbursed amount on a prorated basis, as outlined in the Tuition Reimbursement Agreement signed at approval time — for example, an employee who resigns 6 months after receiving reimbursement repays 50% of the amount received.

Repayment is not required if the employee is involuntarily terminated without cause, or if they leave due to a qualifying medical hardship documented with HR; the repayment obligation exists specifically to discourage using the benefit and then immediately resigning, not to penalize departures outside the employee's control.

Covered Program Types

Eligible programs include undergraduate and graduate degree programs, professional certifications directly relevant to the employee's role (for example, a cloud certification for an engineer), and accredited online courses; unaccredited bootcamps are reviewed case by case and are not automatically covered the way accredited coursework is.

Denial Appeals

An employee whose pre-approval request is denied may appeal once, in writing, to a review panel made up of one HR representative and one representative from Learning and Development, who were not involved in the original decision; the panel's decision on appeal is final.
